RANDOM FIXED POINTS AND NUMERICS OF RANDOM DIFFERENTIAL EQUATIONS WITH RANDOM DELAY

Arne Ogrowsky

Department of Mathematics, University of Paderborn, Germany
`[ogrowsky@uni-paderborn]`

We investigate a random differential equation with random delay. First we show that the solution generates a random dynamical system. In particular, we need to focus special attention on how to show the measurability. The main aim is to show the existence of a random fixed point. Finally we try to approximate the equation to study some numerical aspects.